Artist's Statement

'OBJECTS FROM A BEACH HOUSE'

Spending time away on the Australian coast is pretty special. It's a chance to collect nostalgic memories. Often it's the small details that stay with us - like the sound of an ocean break at night, or the sensation of sand against our skin. And then there are the objects that collect around the beach house - and in our memory - shells and driftwood, banksia branches and old bottles, succulents in tin cans and smooth rocks with lovely patterns.

This collection of paintings is essentially a meditation on these objects, the things that become in time, a part of the nostalgic fabric of memory.

James studied at the Bournemouth & Poole College of Art & Design in the UK. For over 35 years he has been working as a painter and media director.
